HEALTH AUTHORITIES PLAN CAMPAIGN

SODA FOUNTAINS, ICE CREAM PARLORS WILL BE INSPECTED

Hope to Eliminate Disease Dangers by Enforcing More Stringent Legislation—Public Drinking Glass is a Great Germ Exchange—Nation's Figures.

For the protection of the patrons of soda fountains and ice cream parlors against possible disease contagion the health authorities of most of the states and several hundred municipalities are planning to carry into effect this year more stringent regulation of these dispensaries. According to the general health bureau the methods for the safeguarding of public health take these forms:

The passage of more drastic laws or ordinances so that the peril may be reduced to a minimum.

More frequent and rigorous inspection of drug stores and fountains to compel obedience to the existing statutes or local regulations.

Wider instruction of the public on the danger that menaces them thru the use of improperly washed glasses.

The most recent figures of the United States Census Bureau show that the manufacture of soft drinks reached a total of $226,188,562 in a year while that of ice cream and water ices amounted to $258,666,575. For this year the total will be more than half a billion dollars and of this output the greater part will be served over counters.

On the statute books of forty-six of the state are laws against the common drinking cup that strive to guard the public in this consumption.

In the city of Buffalo, for instance, a recent report shows that in the inspections of 226 soda fountains, 40 were compelled to make correction in their methods of serving drinks or ice cream. This same ratio, says the general health bureau, obtains in large cities and in smaller places reached an even higher figure.

Rhode Island promises to be the first of the states to put a similar law into effect. A bill was introduced at the last legislature for this purpose but because of the early adjournment was lost. A similar bill has been introduced for the present session and the weight of public opinion leads to the expectation on the part of public health workers that it will be carried to early enactment.

Dr. Frank J. Monaghan, commissioner of health in New York City said:

"When any one ill from an infectious disease drinks ice cream soda or any other drink at a public place his saliva touches the glass. This glass if not properly cleansed will transfer the saliva and the germs thru the drink served the next person. Thus, it does not demand any imaginative process to understand how the common drinking glass spreads infectious diseases."

In California the following warning was conveyed by the state board of health over the radio:

AKRON MAYOR AND DIRECTOR ARE ACCUSED.

Complaint that Mayor D. C. Rybolt and Safety Director Lloyd Carter, Akron, have been permitting the "open" selling of race track pools in Akron, has been made to Governor Donahey by former State Representative Gus Kasch.

Kasch asked that both officials be called before the governor and immediate investigation be made of conditions in Akron.

"In many public drinking places particularly soda drink stands and soda fountains where large numbers of people are served within a short period of time there is considerable carelessness displayed in the washing of cups and glasses. Patrons should insist that they be served with clean drinking utensils. There can be no doubt that common colds are easily transmitted thru the use of drinking cups and glassware that have not been properly sterilized after use.

Dr. John S. Fulton, director of the state department of health in Maryland, characterizes the drinking glass that is public property as "a great germ exchange."

The Illinois Social Hygiene League has included the following as one of the means to prevent infection:

"Do not patronize soda fountains using glassware that is not properly sterilized between drinks. This refers also to restaurants and other public places."

The warnings and indications of vigilance are the preliminary indications of an extraordinary activity on the part of health officials to keep the soda fountains and ice cream parlors safe for the public.

C. C. CRABBE TIPPED FOR FEDERAL JOB.

Attorney General Crabbe said he had no knowledge of reports from Washington that he will be considered to fill the position of Roy Haynes as federal prohibition commissioner, if Haynes is removed.

"It's news to me," Crabbe said, when informed that prominent Ohioans have urged Senators Willis and Fess to recommend the attorney general for the job.

It is unlikely Haynes will be removed for many months, according to the Washington advices.

Niles, O. Jan. 29.—The hatred between the klan and anti-klan factions of Niles flared up for a moment again last night when a volley of bullets drove klansmen to shelter just as they were coming out of their weekly meeting. Windows of nearby buildings were shattered but no one was hurt. No arrests were made.

Couple Eloped on Mule-Back

Something unusual in the way of an elopement was performed by Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Boneau of Salvador, Central America, who arrived in San Francisco on the Pacific mail liner Colombia. It was at a social affair in Salvador that Senorita Julita Mena slipped away from her duenna and met Boneau, who was waiting nearby with a pair of mules. The couple rode 25 miles to Mexicanos, where Gov. Alexander Salazar of San Salvador performed the ceremony. Their fathers, rich coffee planters, pursued them but arrived only in time to give their blessing.

VAN DORN HUGHES

Well Known Auto Salesman Died After Short Illness.

Van Dorn Hughes, a salesman for G. L. Schieffelin died suddenly this morning at the rooming house of Miss Rea Brown, West Main street.

The deceased had been over to Adelphi Wednesday where he ate heartily of some bologna. This morning he ate a light breakfast at the restaurant of H. E. Betz & Son and then went to his room. He came out in the hall and called the housekeeper, Mrs. Hester White, and asked her for some baking soda as he was suffering with indigestion. Mrs. F. L. Page, who is here attending her sister, Miss Rea Brown, seeing the man was ill asked if she had better call a doctor and he said yes, call Dr. Courtwright. The latter came and gave the man medical attention.

Mr. Hughes was sitting on a chair when the doctor left. The latter had hardly left the room when Mr. Hughes reeled and fell off the chair. The doctor was recalled but the man passed away shortly after his arrival. The cause of death is given as angina pectoris, with acute indigestion as the contributory cause.

Mr. Hughes came to this city fifteen years ago from New Philadelphia. He was engaged as a corn broker and sold corn to dealers on a percentage basis. Recently he had been associated with the G. L. Schieffelin garage selling automobiles. He was a man of fine personality and made a good appearance. He had been rooming at Miss Brown's rooming house for the past ten years.

Not much is known of his family connection, but his friends say that he has a wife living at New Philadelphia also two sons and two daughters. A son, W. H. Hughes living at Washington D. C., visited his father last fall.

Mr. Hughes was a man about 60 years of age. He was very fond of the fox chase and kept a number of fox hounds, which he had on hand at the time of his death.

The remains were viewed by Coroner O. H. Dunton and were later removed to the parlors of the Albaugh company where his body will be held for his relatives.

WOMAN SAYS BURGLAR IS HAIR BOBBER

Long Tresses Clipped While Owner Was Asleep—Five Dollar Bill Disappeared.

Mrs. R. T. Tresenrider, 430 East Mound street, Columbus, told police that a burglar invaded her home early Wednesday morning and clipped off part of her long hair.

"I was sleeping in the upstairs room with my two children," she said. "My husband was in another room. At 2 o'clock I heard a sound like the closing of the bedroom door."

"I called my husband and he looked downstairs. The place had been ransacked. A $5 bill was gone."

"In the morning when I went to comb my hair, two big strands, one on either side, fell off. I think the burglar cut them."

"Now I suppose I'll have to bob my hair."

WHEAT BROKE AND REACHED HIGH RECORD

Wild Scenes Enacted in Chicago Grain Pits—Heavy Demands From Abroad.

Wheat broke thru the $2 mark on the Chicago Board of Trade Wednesday, January 28, reaching a new high since the war of $2.05 a bushel.

Wild scenes were enacted in the grain pits as May wheat broke thru to the new record high.

Coats and collars were ripped to shreds as scores of men flung themselves about the limited confines of the wheat pit, gesticulating frantically with their hands and arms as they signalled for purchases and sales.

Unexpectedly heavy demands from abroad gave the incentive for the outburst of trading.

May wheat closed at $1.99½ Wednesday after coming within one-quarter of a cent of $2. Wednesday's opening was $1.99½. Prices held around that figure for a short time and then the upward rush started.

MISS HUBER HEADS OHIO GIRLS' CLUB

Former Circleville Girl is Acting President of Organization

AT WASHINGTON, D. C.

Mrs. Frank B. Willis, Wife of This State's Senator, is Sponsor.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 27.—(U. P.)—With Mrs. Frank B. Willis as its sponson, the Ohio Girls' club of Washington is doing a splendid work along various lines of social service. Mrs. Amelia Early of Salem, Ohio, president of the club, is sojourning in Europe and the active duties of the presidency have fallen on Miss Arista Huber, of Circleville, who is the club's vice president.

Mrs. Willis is so much pleased with what the Ohio girls are doing that she took her reportorial pen in hand and wrote the following article for The Columbus Dispatch:

"Thinking the folks back home might be interested in knowing something of what the Ohio Girls' club in Washington stands for, I thought I would write this article and give the history of this organization. Many have never heard of this club. Many clubs of other states have been organized similar to this, but none just like it. It is not altogether a social club for mere pastime, but it is interested in the welfare of others and does things worth while."

"We find many Ohioans in Washington. Some are living here, some are engaged temporarily in different walks of life, some are engaged in the government service and are here so long as the people back home decide to have them here. We belong to this group ourselves. I don't think there is anyone who enjoys seeing home folks (Ohio people, I mean) more than we do. Ohioans are clanish and we do like our own crowd."

"I had not been in Washington long until I was asked to be sponsor for the Ohio Girls' club. The invitation I accepted, though I knew nothing at that time of the organization. In getting the history of the club I found that it was organized in 1918 by Mrs. Welty, wife of Congressman Welty of Lima, Ohio. It is made up entirely of the working girls of Ohio, most of them were employed in the government service in the various departments during the war, and the purpose of it was to bring together the Ohio girls in Washington in a social way, so that they might become better acquainted and form friendships. Otherwise they were likely to get homesick and return to their homes dissatisfied. Their services were very much needed at that time in various departments, especially those connected with war work. Their first get-together meeting was held at Rock Creek park in June, 1918, and was attended by girls only. "Since there were a great number of Ohio men in uniform stationed in and near Washington at that time, continued on page four.

Violet Highly Prized.

Memorial to Fallen Heroes.
In Japan is a tall stone monument erected as a memorial to the horses killed in the Russian-Japanese war. It stands in the public park of the town of Sano in the Tochigi prefecture. A photograph of the townsfolk gathered about it shows the headman of the district attired in a Prince Albert coat. General Viscount Oshima, one of the heroes of the war, wrote the principal inscription, from which it appears that 1,200 horses from the county and vicinity are so remembered.

Recent and Serious Disease of Poultry

Respiratory Ailment Diagnosed as Fowl Diphtheria.

A serious respiratory disease of poultry which has swept over the United States during the last three months has been tentatively diagnosed as fowl diphtheria by scientists at the Kansas Agricultural college. Post mortem examination showed that most poultry so afflicted was badly infested with worms.

Treatment with tobacco dust for round worms and turpentine and olive oil for tape worms is recommended. Strict sanitation and plowing up all poultry yards, help in preventing the spread of this pest.

The tobacco dust treatment for round worms, when infestation is severe, is made by boiling one pound of tobacco dust in water for two hours and then mixing with three quarts of mash. This is sufficient for 100 birds. Follow in a few hours with epsom salts at the rate of one pound mixed in three quarts of mash for each 100 fowls. D. J. Taylor, poultry specialist at the Kansas Agricultural college, states that any flock will be benefited at this time of year by feeding 2 percent of tobacco dust in the mash for four weeks.

For tapeworms the 1re treatment is recommended. Cook one gallon of whole grain for each 15 birds. Cover it with water to which has been added a small tablespoonful of concentrated lye. After a 15-hour fast, feed this mixture to the fowls and provide plenty of water. The treatment may be repeated in 24 hours if thought necessary.

Have Good Root System for Small Fruit Plants

Dig plum trees so as to get as many roots as is possible, then turn the tree over and cut all ends of roots off at a slope from the under side. The top parts should be cut off, too, so that they correspond with the amount of roots that are left. In cutting back the top, if the tree is a very upright grower, leave the last bud at point where you cut, on the outside, so that the new growth will come out more spreading. The last good bud left on stubs is the one that will make the leading new growth, so leave it on the side that you wish occupied. When setting out the plum and small fruit plants, be sure to firm the soil well about the roots. In digging and preparing the raspberry and blackberry plants, there is not much for you to observe except getting a fairly good root system. The old top may be dead to the ground, or it may not be; but in any case you should only leave one single cane and cut this back to a stub from 8 to 12 inches long. You should not expect to get fruit from these reset small fruits this season so do not be afraid to cut out nearly all of the old wood. The new wood which should grow this coming summer is that which bears the crop next year.

Value of Pumpkins in the Fattening of Pigs

Results from three experiment stations show that 376 pounds of pumpkins fed with 273 pounds of grain, gave 100 pounds of gain with fattening pigs. Authorities state that 2 1/2 tons of pumpkins are equal to one ton of corn silage. About the only way of getting at the value of corn silage is by figuring its actual cost and this varies a great deal. Data kept in Illinois indicated that a ton of silage costs about $3.30. With concentrates at $20 per ton and legume hay at $14 per ton, good silage is worth about $3.50 per ton. Therefore, if it takes 2 1/2 tons of pumpkins to equal one ton of corn silage and it is worth $3.50, pumpkins would be worth less than half that amount. However, we believe they would be worth more than that for feeding hogs but we doubt if they are worth $3 per ton. The seeds of pumpkins contain much nutriment and they should not be removed when feeding.

FARM NOTES

Beets are one of the most healthful of vegetables, containing more elements which the human system needs than almost any other.

Every home garden should have a little patch of plants for salads. Once planted most varieties produce for several years thereafter.

A place for everything and everything in its place should be the motto of every home gardener, especially when it comes to the care of his tools.

From other tests that have been made with dried buttermilk it appears that it can be used to best advantage in the mash when supplemented with meat and scrap or tankage.

Where there is room for two or three extra rows, try growing some popcorn for the children. It requires very little attention, and late in the summer you will be surprised to find nice, plump ears, two or three to the stalk.

Hardy chrysanthemums give the last fall flowers. The white and pink blossoms are hurt by freezing, but most of the yellow, bronze and dark shades are not. In the colder states they need to be watered in a cold frame.

Calls a Long Way

By MARTIN M. CHESTER

(© 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

"YOU mulish little fellow! Thought you were smart, didn't you. Dad told you to come when I called. Take that and that and that. Next time I call, you come. Understand? Promise?"

Jim Carter stopped pommeling, but still held his younger brother John to the ground by a knee and one strong hand. John glared up furiously as he struggled for freedom, but without words.

"Look here," Jim continued, "Dad told you to mind me while he was gone. And he told me to look out you didn't do some fool trick and get hurt or killed. So if I call you, you drop what you're doing and come. Get that? Promise?"

This was after supper and the boys did not meet again that night. Next morning John did not answer the breakfast bell. His father was summoned, and the police set to work—all to no end. The only word or trace of John was the scrawl he had left in his room: "I told Jim he'd have to call a long way if he wanted me to come, and I don't know as I'll come then."

And even when, as Judge James Carter, Jim had become famous as the "children's judge," he was still searching for John.

Then one day a friend in New York telegraphed that a man about John's age had been picked up unconscious after a street accident—too injured about the face for recognition, but bearing papers that seemed to identify him as John H. Carter.

Jim was immensely stirred. Again and again clues had led him to some John Carter—always to the wrong one. But "H." he said to himself, "John H. Carter!" And he swiftly put his desk in order that he might start at once for New York.

"A woman to see you, judge," said his confidential clerk. "It's about that boy, Pete Blainey."

Jim looked at his watch. "I have ten minutes—no more."

The woman's story was a familiar one, but hard for Jim to hear just at that moment. Her boy Pete and his older brother Jerry couldn't get along. Jerry meant well, but was rough and bossy—thought he had to take his father's place. And Pete had grown impudent—even at the office where he worked—and yesterday the boss had given him the sack. Now things at home were worse than ever. Wouldn't the judge help?

Jim explained that he was just starting for New York but would take the matter up at once on his return.

The woman burst into tears. "You'll be too late! Pete's fixin' to run off. I come on a bunch of his clothes tied up. It'll be tonight, and I'm afraid he'll steal money to go with."

"But—" Jim began, "but I told you—" Jim's head bent to his hands upon the desk. "I'm calling from far, John," he cried in his mind. "Come back—don't go off again, John. I want another chance." His head lifted and he smiled at the woman: "I'll do what I can," he said aloud.

Twenty minutes later he sat in the office of the mining expert who had discharged Pete Blainey. The desk telephone rang sharply, interrupting his plea for Pete's reinstatement.

"That," said the expert, excusing himself, "is long distance from Tucson, Ariz. By the way, it's from a man of your name."

The habit of following up every clue had become second nature to Jim. Of course John was lying in New York—perhaps at the point of death—and yet—"What's this particular Carter's given name?" he asked rather wearily.

But the mining expert was already talking: "Hello?" he asked. "John H. Carter?"

"What?" exclaimed Jim. "Who? Let me—Give me that—" He rushed toward the desk.

"Judge Carter speaking, long distance," introduced the expert as he gave up the telephone.

"Hello! John H. Carter?" Jim was asking in his turn.

"Yes," came long distance in a man's weather-roughened tones.

"John H. Carter, born in Illinois?"

"Yes," came the answer.

"Did you have a domineering, overbearing, self-righteous fool of an older brother?" Jim's voice was growing unsteady.

"You bet I did!" Long distance spoke bet. "Are you Jim?"

"Yes, John, this is Jim."

"Gee—caught me at last!" "Say, you aren't Judge James Carter, are you! The judge that gets next to the kids?"

"If I'm worthy to be called 'the children's judge'—if I do anything for them—it's because I've been thinking of you, John, ever since you left."

For an instant long distance kept silence. Then—"Say, Jim, you're a long way off now—You know what I said?"

"What you said?" repeated Jim, puzzled. Then he gave a great shout over long distance: "John Carter, you come here!"

New Animal Snare

A rubber compound has been marketed by a firm in Singapore which when heated and spread on a board will ensnare any bird, insect or beast of reasonable size, once it steps on it, exactly as the modern fly paper catches the fly. The product has aroused the interest of inhabitants in those sections where it is necessary to fortify the home or camp against wild animals and insects which are pests.

Food Depends on Monsoons

In India, the greater part of the Bombay presidency, including Sindh, depends for its food supply upon the southwest monsoons that happily invade that part of the country at regular intervals. In years of defective or irregular monsoons these areas are liable to the dreaded recurrence of the "India famine," when the shortage of food supply is felt by animals as well as human beings.

You Pay for a DeLaval whether you buy one or not—

If your separator doesn't skim clean you are feeding your pigs and chickens enough butter-fat—which is always the equivalent of cash money—to pay for a new clean-skimming DeLaval.

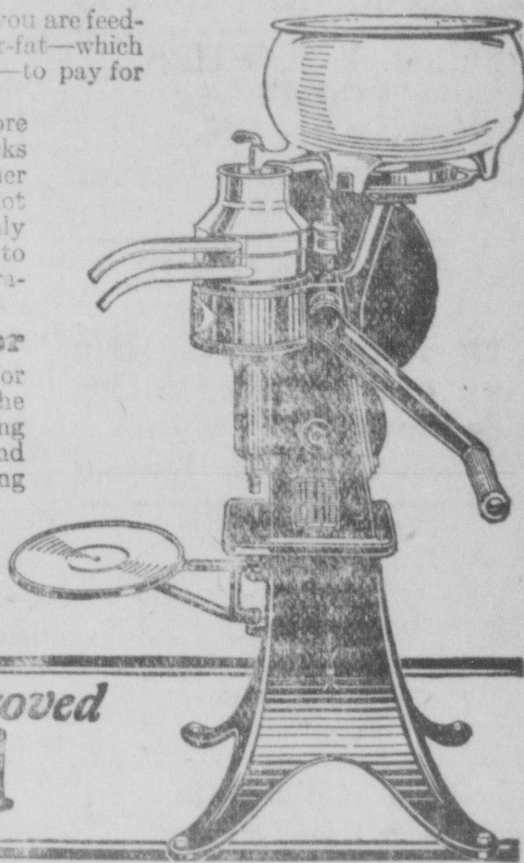

We recently heard of a farmer who more than doubled the size of his cream checks by replacing an old separator of another make with a new DeLaval. You may not get such an increase, but you will certainly get some when you put a new DeLaval to work—enough to pay for it in a comparatively short time.

Bring in your old separator

We will accept it as partial payment for a brand-new, up-to-date DeLaval—the separator with the wonderful self-centering bowl, that skims cleaner, runs easier and lasts longer. It pays for itself by saving the fat that other separators waste.

Wife Understands

A husband often thinks that the reception is being given to celebrate the eighteenth anniversary of their wedding, observes H. R. H., but the wife is perfectly clear in her mind that the affair was planned to convince him by sheer force of numbers that at last they simply must have a sun-room built off the living room to the south, with French doors between.—Kansas City Star.

Chinese Dancing Rules

In China, the ballroom floors are divided into squares, each of which bears a sign of a bird, fish, or some other form of nature. Dancers must keep to their own squares and if they fail to do so are stamped with a colored disk. Three failures to keep within the square assigned results in the penalty of leaving the place.

ADVERTISING

Will Million Dollars Buy?—Here Are the Figures.

How much advertising will a million dollars buy? Plenty—but you can't make a "big splash" with such a sum, by any means. The relative smallness of a million dollars, when measured against modern advertising costs, is revealed by Bruce Barton in this week's issue of Liberty.

"Suppose you decide to concentrate on the magazines," he says. "The highest priced magazine page is the back cover of a woman's magazine, costing sixteen thousand dollars for one issue. A fair magazine campaign would cost as follows:

	Cost
Twelve pages in color in four weeklies	$ 237,000
Twelve color pages in three women's magazines.	414,000
Twelve color pages in four monthly magazines	210,000
Twelve pages in five farm papers	151,800

$1,012,000

There, your million is gone!

"If you went into newspapers, you could buy twelve half pages in each of 1,610 papers, reaching approximately twenty million readers, for $960,000. With billboards and printed signs, you could cover 747 cities, or you could have a card in practically every street car in the United States.

"A million dollars will just about enable you to cover the country with one method of advertising for one year."

HAPPENINGS IN OUR STATE

Taken Direct From the Wires by Correspondents of the United States Press Association.

(United Press)

Akron, Jan. 29—Net profits of the B. F. Goodrich Co., tire and rubber goods manufacturers, amounted to $8,800,000 in 1924, it was announced following the meeting of the directors here. These dividends were declared on preferred stock. One dollar and seventy-five cents for each share payable April 1, to stock of record March 16, 1925 and a similar amount payable July 1 to stock of record June 15.

Toledo, Jan. 29—Fire which destroyed part of the refinery of the Paragon Oil Co., yesterday afternoon was brought under control today but was not completely extinguished. Firemen worked heroically against the handicap of intermittently exploding vats of oil and zero temperature.

The loss was estimated at $250,000. Eleven tanks and agitators containing 15,000 barrels of oil, benzine, gasoline and refined and crude oils were destroyed. Many tanks were saved by firemen who kept streams of water playing on vats adjacent to those which were burning.

Columbus, Jan. 28—A "county home rule" bill was introduced in the senate this afternoon by Senator L. G. Collier of Cleveland. The measure would submit to the people a constitutional amendment permitting cities to join in one county government in counties of more than 100,000 population.

Columbus, Jan. 28—The senate concurred with the House late today in authorizing the appointment of a joint legislative committee to investigate the availability of the Crafton farm in Lorain county for a state hospital. A committee of six legislators will be appointed to conduct the probe.

State engineers have reported that the water supply at the farm inadequate.

Columbus, Jan. 28—Mrs. Maude C. Waite, Cleveland senator, said today that some time this week she would introduce a resolution in the senate for an amendment to the state constitution to establish the "short ballot" in Ohio.

Columbus, Jan. 28—John E. Harper, state welfare director, today announced the resignation of William M. Smith, superintendent of the state bureau of criminal identification, effective February 1. Smith will be succeeded by C. A. Myers, Akron.

Barnesville, O., Jan. 28—Jimmie Oliver, aged 4, died a hero, trying to save his baby brother, Billy, 15 months, from flames. The mother of the tots left the baby in his high chair and Jimmie to watch him while she visited a neighbor. A can of stove polish setting too close to the fire exploded. The burning liquid was splashed over both children and the house ignited. Jimmie, instead of fleeing in fright, apparently tried to take his baby brother from the high chair and put out the fire. The baby escaped with a few burns.

Cleveland, Jan. 28—The county grand jury today indicted Just Glem and John H. Foley, county dry agents on a charge of accepting a bribe and neglect of duty.

Marion, O., Jan. 29—Major Ora M. Baldinger, former White House aide, Thursday took over the Harding Memorial association. He succeeds the late Brigadier General Charles E. Sawyer, as president of the association.

Urbana, O., Jan. 29—John E. Motachman, "new king of the ivories," has been sued for divorce on the grounds that he is a prisoner at the Ohio penitentiary.

Columbus, Jan. 29—Miss Izella Watt and R. C. Williamson were killed in an auto accident here today.

Niles, Jan. 29—Niles today celebrated the anniversary of the birth of its greatest citizen, President William McKinley.

Chillicothe, Jan. 29—Following the conviction of two moving picture theater operators local movie owners have agreed to close their shows on Sundays.

Cleveland, Jan. 29—All for love, Miss Violet Thompson has forsaken the mansion of her millionaire father for a flat in Elyria and a husband who earns a meager salary as a construction engineer.

From a position of prominence in Cleveland's social register, Miss Thompson has passed into the Elyria telephone book as Mrs. W. J. Boddy.

Her father, A. E. Thompson, general agent for the Cleveland and Buffalo Navigation company threatened to have the marriage annulled when Violet came home with her engineer husband.

So just to guard against any possible action of this kind the Boddys eloped away and were married a second time.

"William and I knew each other only three weeks," the bride said. "But it was love at first sight and I am going to show father that I can be happy with the man of my choice."

Columbus, O., Jan. 29—(United Press)—In the party's first big rally since its crashing defeat in the November elections state and national Democratic leaders sounded the battle cry of the next campaign at the annual Jackson day banquet here last night.

Senator Put Harrison, of Mississippi delivered a stirring appeal for a concerted drive on the protective tariff policy of the Republican party.

This issue, he said, will be the keynote of the 1928 presidential campaign.

Cincinnati, Jan. 29—Mrs. Bessie Inez Himpeik, 45, had her name printed in a matrimonial journal "just for a joke" but it wasn't so funny when one of the prospective husbands made off with $1600 of her savings.

Mischievousness of Youth.

A young wife put down her book with a sigh. "What is it, darling?" her husband asked. "Ah, dearest, I am so happy!" she replied. "Yes, but you had such a sad look in your eyes just now." "I know, I've been reading about the unhappiness that the wives of men of genius have always had to bear. Oh, Alfred, dear, I'm so glad you're just an ordinary sort of fellow!"

Seagulls Foretell Weather.

It is a widespread belief, both in Scotland and in Ulster, that "Seagull, seagull, sit on the sand. It's never good weather while you're on the land," alludes to the fact that when the birds fly out early and far to seaward, or remain on the sand, fair weather may be looked for; while if they take a contrary course storms most frequently follow.

LASTS LONGER

The Bak-O-Line Process is a method of spraying the entire pleasure car or truck with a prepared Lacquer enamel producing a velvet or satin finish in any color or combination of colors, far superior in beauty and permanence to the old style color varnish, and the satin finish actually improves with age. The finish is durable and lasting withstanding heat and cold, acids and alkalies, all of which are very destructive to paint and varnish.

it was decided that the club should extend its invitation to the Ohio men to its social affairs. Many picnics, hikes, boat rides and other outdoor activities were enjoyed during the summer and fall by members of the club and their guests—the Ohio men in uniform. During the winter months dances were held and all Ohio people were invited. After the war the need of the club was still felt and it has continued with new members added each year.

"The soldiers who were injured in the war were brought to the hospital in large numbers. Special committees were appointed from the club for the purpose of visiting these wounded soldiers from Ohio. The men have gradually left the hospitals and returned to their homes, but there are still a number remaining.

"At Thanksgiving time greetings are sent them and at Christmas time they are not forgotten, but each one is remembered with an appropriate gift. These gifts are delivered in person by a committee of the girls. When Mrs. Harding was in the White House she furnished flowers to accompany each gift. The spirit shown by the girls is much appreciated by the soldier boys and those in charge of the hospitals. The girls also look after their own club members and if anyone is reported sick she is visited by the girls and sent flowers. On some occasions they have found it especially helpful and nice to send robes, slippers, books, etc. They have also made contributions to worthy causes such as the radio fund for the government hospitals and hospital drives and the American Legion.

"All girls from Ohio are eligible, regardless of age. It is non-sectarian and politics has no part in it. No help, financial or otherwise, is received from any individual or organization, and I can say the girls are very generous in giving when they can be of any help. The dues of the club are a dollar a year and at the present time there are about 100 members and practically all are employed in the government service. Each member is notified of all social affairs and from a mailing list the men from Ohio are invited to the dances. The older members of the club act as chaperones to the dances.

"This is a brief history of the club. To me it is a wonderful organization of girls who work every day and yet are never too tired to help to make others happy."

Martha A. Montgomery of Marion is second vice president of the club. Betty Sedgwick of Martin's Ferry, is corresponding secretary and Marianna Davis of Jackson, is recording secretary.

Marks Historic Spot

The Verendrye National monument, established in 1917, marks the spot on the left bank of the Upper Missouri river where the celebrated French explorer Verendrye and his sons escaped during their explorations in 1733, more than sixty years prior to the expedition of Lewis and Clark. It is associated with the first explorations of North Dakota and the interior of the Northwest, says the New York Times. The records of their journeys are the subject of conflicting interpretations, but there is no question that the Verendrye party was the first to enter North Dakota and to look upon the Upper Missouri. Thus it is that picturesque Crowley butte, rising 565 feet above the river on its left bank, which is the central feature of the monument, is one of the most important landmarks associated with the Verendrye explorations. Like LaSalle's imperial dream of French colonization, Verendrye planned and partly completed a fur trade empire of continental dimensions, but, like LaSalle's, it crumbled away to nothing.

SPECIAL ASSESSMENT ADOPTED

Ryan, Sutherland & Co. Awarded Property Owners Share of Bonds.

Council met Wednesday evening, January 28, pursuant to adjournment with President John C. Goeller, presiding.

On motion of Mr. Shaner council takes a recess to consider the proposition of Ryan, Sutherland and company for the purchase of the Franklin Street Assessment bonds.

An ordinance to amend ordinance No. 508 providing for the issuing of bonds of the city of Circleville, Ohio, in anticipation of the collection of special assessments for the improvement of Franklin street which was passed by council October 15, 1924, was introduced and read for the first time. On motion the rules were suspended and the ordinance was placed upon its passage and carried.

The finance committee made a report to council that the Herrick company of Cleveland, Ohio, had declined to accept the $68,047.50 assessment bonds heretofore awarded then and refused to purchase same. On motion of Mr. Marion this report was accepted.

Mr. Shaner reported that for the Franklin street assessment bonds in the sum of $68,047.50 that Ryan, Sutherland & Co., of Toledo, Ohio, will purchase said bonds at par with accrued interest to date of delivery together with a premium of $1800. On motion of Mr. Wolf this report was accepted.

A resolution was then introduced and read awarding to Ryan, Sutherland & Co., $68,047.50 Franklin street assessment bonds property owner's share. Mr. Shaner offered a motion which was seconded by Mr. Marion that the rules be suspended and this resolution was adopted.

Costly Indian Ornaments

Some say turquois or turkis is named after Turkey, from whence came the stones that were used in old European jewelry. Really the finest ones came from Persia, but that was before the wealth of the blue and green stones of America had been commercialized. Long ago the Apache and Pueblo Indians of the southwestern United States used them in quantities, for turquois, unlike most stones, do not have to be mined, but appear on the surface of the ground in bright greenish-blue spots and strains. The Indians used to gather the turquois and rub them down into the shape of beads, which they wore in long strings. Imagine how costly such a string would be today when one small stone, while it does not rank in value with the gems par excellence, namely the diamond, sapphire, ruby and emerald, is still of sufficient value to bring a good price.

PASTOR RAPS LAWMAKERS AT BANQUET

Governor Vic Donahey Also Came in for Criticism as Law Enforcing Officer.

Members of the Ohio legislature and Governor Donahey Wednesday were having a hard time digesting the treatment they received as guests Wednesday night, January 27, at the banquet tendered them by the sixth annual Ohio Pastors' convention in Columbus.

Shortly after the governor had left to attend another meeting Rev. L. C. Wright, pastor of the Epworth Euclid M. E. church of Cleveland, launched an attack on alleged lack of law enforcement by the state administration.

He referred to the governor's explanation of 16 pardons as "sixteen sobs" according to members of the House.

The Cleveland minister also paid his respects to his guests, the legislators, for defeating ratification of the federal child labor amendment.

"We pastors will see that some new faces are seen in the legislature next session," Wright said.

Many of the legislators said they left at this time.

Governor Donahey spoke at the dinner as did Attorney General Crabbe.

The attorney general said that the enforcement of the law rested with the governor and then plunged into a recital of gambling evils in the state paying especial attention to betting on races at Beulah park, Grove City.

Officers who enforce only the laws which do not affect them, were criticized by Crabbe.

"The mayor of Grove City is so interested in law enforcement that he comes into Columbus and arrests liquor law violators and takes them out to Grove City to arrest them," Crabbe said. "But he says not a thing about the pari-mutuel machines at the race track at his very doorstep."

AMUSEMENTS

The largest cast ever assembled for a motion picture comedy appears in Buster Keaton's latest Metro-Goldwyn film, "The Navigator" which is coming to the Met theater Thursday for a run of three days. Most of the picture was made abroad the "Buford," a 450-foot liner, which was chartered for that purpose by the star.

In addition to the crew of 110 men, the "Buford" carried 500 actors and artisans in the first class section of the ship, 300 in the second class and 150 in the steerage. When Buster sailed out to sea there were more than 1,100 persons on the vessel.

"The Navigator" was concocted by Buster's famous "gag" men, Jean Hays, Clyde Bruckman and Joseph Mitchell; it was directed by Donald Crisp and the star himself, Kathryn McGuire appears in the leading feminine role. The production is presented by Joseph M. Schenck.

Reversed

I have been in embarrassing situations at various times, but the worst incident occurred at a boarding school which I was attending some years ago.

I helped to pay my way through school by waiting on table, and had been assigned to the table occupied by a visiting basketball team.

One of the school girls was acquainted with a young man on this team and asked me to deliver a note to him. To avoid comment, I arranged to carry the note under a dish of ice cream so that, by releasing one finger, it would drop into his lap. I released the wrong finger and saw the dessert delivered instead, while I held the note conspicuously in front of him. I have as yet found no language capable of describing my feelings at the time.—Chicago Tribune.

One-Day Job

Bishop Burt said at a dinner: "A good many people think that a clergyman's life is an easy job. Yes, a good many people make the mistake of Lemuel.

"Lemuel was a farm laborer. One hot day the minister motored past the farm and saw him weeding.

"Hello, Lemuel," said the minister, pulling up. "Hard at work, eh? Well, there's nothing like hard work, is there?"

"Lemuel straightened his bent back out with a groan. He wiped the sweat from his dripping red face. Then he panted:

"No, doctor, you bet there ain't, and I guess that's why you chose a one-day-a-week job."—Detroit Free Press.

Irony and Big Eyes.
Help was scarce, and the packers had to be treated with great care to keep them from walking out. The foreman of the big apple-packing house had suffered almost all he could stand. A full came in the rush of work, and one of the sorters, a thin little girl with big eyes and an Irish name, began to try her hand at packing. "Here, you!" cried the foreman, glad to relieve his feelings on some one. "Cut that out. Put that paper back!" The girl's eyes grew larger as she meekly laid the paper on the table; but she kept them fixed on him, unabashed. "Put it on the shelf where it belongs," he ordered. She did so and with her wide eyes still fixed on his cold gently. "You don't have to speak kind like that to me. I ain't sick or nothing."—Youth's Companion.

Maggie and the Will

By VERA M. JONES

(© 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

MAGGIE FLANNERY'S anxious gaze was turned on the little man in gray kneeling before the bookcase.

"I can assure you, my good woman," he was saying, "that our firm, as administrators, will see that justice is done you, whether your late mistress's will is found or not. You can file claim for unpaid wages, you know—"

"If she can prove she has not already drawn them," Peter Hines broke in from the desk over which he was bending.

"Or that Sarah Baldwin didn't think she had done enough in giving Maggie a home in exchange for her services," Sophy, his wife, supplemented. "Sarah was not fond of spending, you know! Why—the way she treated Peter—her only relative—never a penny—"

Maggie Flannery sank back in her chair, the lassitude of her hopelessness marking every line of her worn face and frail body.

The search continued in silence. The room, a bedchamber, was in a state of upheaval; drawers thrown open and contents jumbled; books from the case piled on the floor; the wardrobe stripped, the garments heaped on the old four-poster.

Then, as Sophy pushed the last of the dresser drawers she had been examining, she drew close to her husband, whispering: "Cheer up, Peter! Suppose a will does turn up! It may only give Maggie her wages, after all, and make her heir—"

Peter gave her a warning nudge. "Not a chance!" he breathed. "You know the old skinflint always warned me Maggie was to be her sole beneficiary at death. My one hope is—since the document wasn't filed—that I get my hands on it first. I won't rest until I do!"

But finally Peter did, sinking down on the bed and lighting a cigarette. Accidentally the flaming match fell on the garments beside him. In snuffing it out he suddenly laughed.

"Sarah not fond of spending!" he quoted his wife. "Well, if this is a sample of my aunt's wardrobe, I think we must agree she wasn't!"

At the sneering tone the old woman roused herself: "Miss Sarah liked her old things best. She always said: 'Old clothes, like old friends—'"

"Maggie!" broke in Sophy, "don't be impertinent."

"Let her be, Sophy. It's edifying to hear these reminiscences! This now"—and Peter mockingly picked up an old dressing gown—"this, Maggie, judging from its ancient appearance, was treasured as a life-long friend, eh!"

Just then the little man in gray turned from replacing the last book in the case; and just as suddenly Peter jumped to his feet.

"But let's end it! What say you, Mr. Dowling? I think you're convinced we've searched thoroughly."

"There's certainly no evidence of a document," Mr. Dowling admitted. He gazed at Maggie Flannery.

Peter Hines turned to the lawyer: "I'll tell you, Mr. Dowling, what I think the explanation is: My aunt intended for me to come into the money this way! You see—during her lifetime she—well, she acted anything but like a wealthy woman should toward her only relative. Remorse for that, no doubt, when death drew near, filled her with a desire to make amends. But she was a proud woman; wouldn't want me to know. So—by dying testate—you see—restitution, without humbling her pride—"

Then a sudden thought came to Sophy. Quickly she grabbed up the old dressing gown, after a swift glance convinced her it was the most dilapidated of the garments. "Here, Maggie, is that robe of Miss Sarah's; that ought to make a grand keepsake—since you loved her so well! Take it, and go. And don't come back here again, or I'll have you arrested for false pretenses—claiming wages we don't owe you! Go now!" Without further ado Sophy took hold of the dazed old woman and thrust her down the back stairway.

Shortly after Peter returned. His manner gave portent of mystery.

"You get rid of her?"

Sophy smiled. "Yes; and I gave her that old dressing gown."

Peter started, then staggered toward a chair. "My God!" he gasped. "Then you gave her the will—"

"Peter!" chided Sophy, wild-eyed. "You're crazy!"

Her husband wagged a tortured hand. "You did, I tell you! When I picked up that old gown on the bed I suddenly noticed a paper sticking out of the pocket. On it was plainly written: 'Last will and testament of Sarah Baldwin.' I was just going to grab it and thrust it in my pocket when Dowling happened to look up and start toward me. So the only thing I could do was push it back in its place until I got rid of him and Maggie. I knew that if they saw it the jig was up! He'd claim a big fee for finding it—and she'd claim everything legally— And good God, that's what she'll do, now that she has the will—"

Identification

"Is Mrs. Rise at home?" inquired Mrs. Chatters, standing in the shadow of the doorway.

"I don't know, ma'am," the new maid replied. "I can't tell till I get a better look at you. If you've got a wart on the side of your nose, she's out."

Chic Fashions in Late Sports Togs

Paris Contributes Attractive Garments for Out-of-Doors Woman.

The very latest phase in fashion, a reflection of the social activities of the day, is the dress for winter sports. It is picturesque, unique and often amusing. In many ways, says a fashion correspondent in the New York Times, the trend of the day is countryward, which creates a need for distinction in dress of various kinds. In the days when city people found their pleasure wholly within walls, the calling of a creator of fashions must have been comparatively simple. However elaborate the gowns of a great lady, it went without saying that she would at all times dress in a manner consistently feminine.

Artists put much skill and industry, and their patrons fabulous sums, sometimes, into splendid ball gowns, charming afternoon frocks and formal tea gowns and a tailor who knew his trade had the most difficult task of all in building a plain tailored suit for the street.
"Fit," which meant enclosing the lady in something almost as snug as her own skin, was the most important consideration some decades ago, as the pictures in fashion books show, and the modiste employed much crinoline, whalebone and steel. A great deal of thought was given to millinery and footwear, and the whole scheme of things involved much detail, the finest workmanship and a great deal of money, as money was counted in grandmother's young ladyhood.

When she went sleighing, she was wrapped in furs over the most modish frock and bonnet. When she skated, it was in a costume whose architecture displayed a figure as tightly molded in stays as it appeared in her most elaborate evening gown. In those days any tailor was entrusted with the making of a skating suit, and for that matter many of them were obviously home-made affairs.

Sports Clothes Favored.
In the span of two generations dress has been revolutionized, and femininity is expressed in terms of a boyish silhouette, in a figure guileless of stays, in trousers, boots and cardigans. The debutante is an athlete, the young daughter a tomboy and the successful courtesier must make this type the keynote of his endeavor.

The finer fabrics, flannels, broadcloth, camel-hair and cashmere are now for woman's activities. Her tailor works today in English materials, in Highland tweeds and buckskins, in Highland tartans, in buckskin and suede. Innumerable homely stuffs and accessories, once looked upon as bourgeois, are receiving respectful attention, and one by one appear as something choice and rare. Such lowly garments as knitted jackets, mufflers and woolen skirts that were associated with the farm are now thought chic and represent the type of thing designated as sports dress. It is the fad of the day to feature the peasant's garment, and the more crude it is the more decorative and smart. One's modiste presents the crocheted "shawl," the sleeveless jacket (originally called cardigan) and the knitted socks of yarn as the last word in smartness for a sportswoman's outfit.

These very things are not confined to sports clothes, for their comfortable appeal has found its way to the luxury-loving person who seldom stirs beyond walls. Whether the argument is for ease or for the pleasant consciousness of being in style appears not to signify, for they are unmistakably modish.
Anticipating a bit the actual season of winter sports, the department stores and smaller shops have had on display from time to time suits, single garments and ensembles in the smartest sports costumes. They are more important, having more of style, service and individual appeal than any clothes of this type yet shown. They are far ahead of last year's styles, which were then considered to be outworn.

A few of the lovely things brought from Paris indicate the trend for outdoor winter clothes, without regard to fitness for specific occasions. Among these is a particularly attractive example of the knitted dress. It consists of a three-quarter length coat of black and white zephyr wool crocheted in a fine close stitch, one stripe being all white, the other black, each two and one-half inches wide. The collar is wide and voluminous, to stand high and fold over, and the coat fastens with wool frogs down the front. The turn-back cuffs are wide, and a fringe edges the bottom of the coat.

This is one of the most engaging examples of black and white in striking combination that has been shown this season. It is a garment to be worn over any dress, for a stroll, a drive or short outing in the country. There is a knitted skirt of black and white stripes to match the coat, if a two-piece suit is desired, and a scarf that will combine with the suit or serve separately.

Black and White Used.
In this black and white scheme are many stunning suits—two-piece, three-piece and separate garments. A charming little winter dress is made of white kasha cloth in one piece. The stitched seam that joins skirt to bodice in an ornamental line and cuffs and collar are outlined with a row of small, dull black buttons close together. This frock, which has no other trimming, is original and chic and is intended, in its slim simplicity, to be worn under an overwrap of cloth or fur.

In the same collection is a frock of white broadcloth cut in a straight silhouette, with a pattern in yellow cloth introduced in points and slender panels.

Another model is done in gray kasha duvetyn, over which is worn a coat of gray rodier material with deep skirt band, collar and cuffs of kit fox and lining of silver gray broadcreepe. In gayer moods is a three-piece suit of brown tweed, strictly tailored. The overblouse is a combination of vivid scarlet, orange, black and brown, and the three-quarter coat is made of the plain tweed, with scarf of the same lined with bright orange silk.

Since colored stockings have become the rage, many pretty patterns are shown. The sheer chiffons are in flesh, peach, apricot, amber and beige, usually plain and thin as gossamer. Black and white is smart, but black is seldom seen except in the lacy open-work and embroidered stockings. In the woolen stockings that are now smart for the street and sports wear are many engaging styles—checks, diagonals, stripes and the plain woollens embroidered with fancy cloaks.

For the less gentle country life, the sports and strenuous doings of the athletic element, a definite type of costume is shown, models representing designs from many artists of renown in Paris. The creators of styles are departing from their accepted metier in adapting their art to sports clothes for Americans. These are similar to those in vogue at the Continental resorts, or are reproduced with a fine sense of proportion and are undeniably chic.

Women's sports togs, to be comme il faut, are almost exactly like men's—more so this season than ever before. Real sportswomen go in for a costume far more extreme than has before been shown. It is, first of all, of somewhat lightweight loose-woven wool, for in the uplands the air and the snow are dry and the sun shines brightly. Skirts are non-existent, except for the moderately active hiker or skater, or for one who looks on at sport events. Every woman who snowshoes, skis or toboggans, and most of those who do not, wear breeches, knickers or bloomer-shaped affairs. The comfort of these is admitted, the vogue decreed.

THE VINE AND THE BRANCHES
LESSON TEXT—John 15:1-17.
GOLDEN TEXT—"He that abideth in me, and I in him, the same bringeth forth much fruit."—John 15:5.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Being Friends of Jesus.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Vine and the Branches.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Fruit-Bearing Lives.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Union With Christ.

Under the beautiful allegory of the vine and the branches Jesus set forth the spiritual oneness of Himself and His disciples.

1. The Relationship of Jesus and the Father to the Disciple (vv. 1-3).

1. Jesus the Source of the Disciple's Life (v. 1). I.e. is the true vine. Through the incarnation Jesus identified Himself with humanity, and by virtue of His atoning death and resurrection it is possible for the believer to be a partaker of His life so that between the disciple and his Lord there is a community of life. As the vine pours its life into the branch, so Christ pours His life into the believer. Our salvation is eternal life because it is the life of the eternal Son in us.

2. The Father Has in His Hands the Discipline of the Disciple (v. 1). The "Father is the husbandman." Just as the culture of the vine is in the hands of a husbandman so the discipline of the believer's life is in the hands of the Father. In this disciplinary process he

(a) Removes the unfruitful branch (v. 2). He does not take the trouble to prune the fruitless branch. The nominal church member, the mere professor, He removes.

(b) Purges the fruitful branch that it may produce more fruit (v. 2). He restrains our natural tendencies and desires in order that the virtues of the Lord, the fruits of the Spirit, may shine forth.

3. The instrument by which the pruning is accomplished is Jesus' words (v. 3). The disciples already were cleansed by Christ's words, for Judas the traitor had been cast out. If the believer's life is to be fruitful in character and service the pruning knife, Christ's words, must be intelligently and regularly applied.

II. The Conditions of Fruit-Bearing (vv. 4-7).

The supreme object in pruning, the culture of the vine, is fruit.
1. Abiding in Christ (vv. 4-6). As the branches draw sap and life from the vine, so believers must abide in Christ, from whom they derive their purity, strength and wisdom. Indeed, it is a mutual abiding, the disciple in Christ and Christ in the disciple. It is Christ's life expressing itself through the believer. The one thus indwelt by Christ will bear much fruit. So great is the displeasure of the Lord with lifeless, unfruitful branches that they are to be "cut forth," "withered," even burned (v. 6).

2. Christ's Words Abide in Us (v. 7). So mighty is the power of the one who abides in Christ and in whom His words abide that Heaven can withhold no gift from him.

III. The Blessed Issue of a Fruitful Life (vv. 8-17).

1. The Glorification of the Father (v. 8). Through much fruit-bearing, the Father will be glorified (Matt. 5:16).

2. Credentials of Discipleship (v. 8). The only way to prove that one is a child of God is to manifest the characteristics of God in one's acts and service.

3. Abiding in Christ's Love and Keeping His Commandments (vv. 9, 10). The way to abide in Christ's love is to keep His commandments. The one who neglects the words of Christ is destitute of His love. It is folly to talk of being in the love of Christ while disobeying His teachings.

4. Fulness of Joy (v. 11). The way to have fulness of joy is to have Christ's joy in us.

5. Loving one another (vv. 12, 13). The one who abides in Christ and has the life of Christ flowing into him will live a life of love, will love his fellowman, especially his brother in Christ.

6. Friends of Christ (vv. 14, 15). Christ's friends do whatsoever He commands. Being thus obedient He takes us into His confidence and makes known unto us the Heavenly Father's will.

7. Perpetual Fruit-Bearing in Love, With Power in Prayer (vv. 16, 17).

Physical Vigor

Physical weakness is not a sign of spiritual power. All other things considered, the man or woman who enjoys physical vigor will be able to accomplish more than those who are puny and ill.

How Many?

"How many people," says Jeremy Taylor, "are busy in the world gathering together a handful of thorns to sit upon!"

Our Fears

What we fear most is not today's trouble, but that which may happen tomorrow.

Dumb Love

A dumb love is only acceptable from the lower animals.—Doctor Van Dyke.

Drowned in a Fish Story.
A jocose contributor to Outdoor Life is the author of the most delightful "fish story" we have read in a long while, says the Youth's Companion. An interesting experiment, he says, was tried some time ago with an ordinary salt-water herring. The fish was put into a large bowl of salt water, and every day a small quantity of it was removed and an equal quantity of fresh water substituted until eventually the herring lived and thrived in purely fresh water. The owner was so much pleased with the success of the experiment that he then began daily to remove a small quantity of water from the bowl until it was empty. The herring seemed to do very well without it, and since it was so lively in the empty bowl, the owner had to put it into a cage. There it lived happily, hopping from perch to perch, just like a bird, until one day some sudden noise upset and startled it, and it fell into the water trough and was drowned.

Importance of "Now."
"Now" is ever ticking from the clock of time. "Now" is the watchword of the wise. "Now" is on the banner of the prudent. Let us keep this little word always in our mind; and whenever anything presents itself to us in the shape of work, whether mental or physical, let us do it with all our might, remembering that now is the only time for us.—Selected.

After a three months' stay in New York City, on Broadway, Sissle & Blake, the deservedly famous Dixie entertainers assisted by their "Chocolate Dandies" company, have turned their backs on the "big town" for a tour of all of the principal American cities. They are due at the Hartman theater Columbus, for three days beginning Monday, January 26, with a matinee on Wednesday.

A fortune has been spent upon the two acts and twelve scenes of this stage presentation. The sponsor of the latest efforts of these co-author-stars, Sissle & Blake is Bert C. Whitney, who has given to the American public many genuine successes in the musical comedy line, including "The Chocolate Soldier," Ed. Wynn in "The Perfect Fool" and many others. Neither money nor pains have been spared in making "The Chocolate Dandies" the most pretentious and colorful musical comedy production seen in years.

A large cast of Dixie funsters includes, besides the stars, Noble Sissle and Eubie Blake, Lew Payton, Lottie Gee, Josephine Baker, Valada Snow, Elizabeth Welsh, Jimmy Ferguson, Amanda Randolph, Addison Carey, J. Mardo Brown, W. A. Hann, William Grundy, Lee Randolph, Inez Clough, Percy Coiston, George Elmore, W. H. Berry, Mildred Smallwood, Lloyd Keyes, the Bamville Silver Cornet band, the Sissle and Blake comedy orchestra and a chorus of beautiful brunettes, which makes by far the largest and peppiest musical comedy organization now before the American public. It's a wow!
Box office indications point to capacity attendance and we venture to predict a performance well deserving the patronage of those who love the type of entertainment represented by musical revue.

DAUGHERTY AS WITNESS IN INQUIRY

Late Attorney General Not Permitted to Tell Truth of Whole Situation.

"A year ago in Washington, members of the president's cabinet were held hellbound and spell-bound," declared Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty of Columbus when he took the stand in defense of Gaston B. Means and Thomas Felder, charged with conspiracy in connection with the "Glass Casket" mail frauds.

"I should like to tell the truth of the whole situation," continued Daugherty, after leading questions by counsel were ruled out by Federal Judge Lindley.

Ruled Out

The court refused to hear Daugherty, however, on the ground that his testimony would consist of side issues.

The former cabinet members grew bitter as he was asked concerning the integrity and honesty of Felder, a New York attorney.

"I believe Felder is honest," he said "but after what I have been thru I cannot testify as to the honesty of anyone."

Daugherty laughed outright when asked if he had ever told Means that the Republicans had a deficit from its last campaign and that Means should raise money from the "Glass-Casket" defendants.

He denied he had ever been approached by Felder in the Glass-Casket case. He was asked if Felder had ever received any favors from him while he was attorney general, but was not permitted to answer.

PARIS TO HAVE WORLD EXHIBIT

Erect Buildings for Display of Decorative Arts.

Paris.—A city going up within a city. Such is the sight confronting visitors to Paris when they look over the great buildings being erected between the Champs Elysees and the Esplanade des Invalides to provide shelter for the international exhibition of decorative arts, from April to October, 1925.

Situated on both banks of the Seine, the exhibition grounds will cover an area of 70 acres. It has been found necessary to extend the private stalls across the beautiful bridge of Alexandre III, which serves as a connecting link over the Seine, and the most modern bridge in Paris with houses built upon it will resemble an ancient structure of the days of the Romans or the Middle Ages.

Modernism will be the essential condition upon which articles will be admitted. All copies or genuine antiques will be banished. A special pavilion has been set aside for the exhibits of electrical dynamos and motors.

The industries invited to participate in the exhibition have been divided into five groups: Architecture, furniture, decoration, arts of the theater, street and gardens, and tuition.

Architecture has been subdivided into the following exhibits: Art and industry in stone; art and industry in wood; art and industry in metal; art and industry in ceramics; and art and industry in glass.

Furniture and household necessities will be shown in wood, leather, metal, glass, textile and paper. Under this head will be also exhibited books, toys, musical instruments and scientific apparatus.

Decoration exhibits will comprise garments, dresses and accessories, perfumery, flowers and jewelry.

Everything pertaining to the theater, street and gardens and tuition will be shown under the last two groups.

All the great perfumery houses in Paris have combined and will occupy the same pavilion.

German Railways Adopt Yankee Efficiency Ways

Dusseldorf.—The German railway administration is introducing American efficiency methods.

The bureaucracy, inherited from imperial times, is giving place to business methods. Various subordinates, such as divisional chiefs, are being given much wider latitude of decision and their initiative is thus being strengthened.

By way of reducing operating expenses, the administration is negotiating for the acquisition of sawmills, steel works, etc., in which much of the equipment needed is to be made.

The change of spirit is most noticed in connection with advertising methods. A comprehensive scheme has been mapped out for popularizing travel on the railways of the reich through folders, maps, moving-picture films, and travel agencies maintained in foreign centers.

So long as the railway system was merely a department government, there was little done to make active propaganda for the roads. A trained advertising staff is now at work to change this.

Just as soon as the railway administration is on its feet financially, more comfortable cars are to be constructed and put into service.

California to Restore Another Spanish Mission

Oakland, Cal.—Mission San Jose, a picturesque California landmark, 30 miles south of here, is to undergo its first renovation since it was erected by the Spanish padres in 1791.

The mission contains historic records and an ancient graveyard, with monuments bearing the names of some of the men who opened the gates to Western civilization.

After the complete restoration of Carmel mission, in Monterey county, in which the famous padre, Junipero Serra, is buried, San Juan Baptista mission, in San Benito county, was rehabilitated. The San Jose mission is next on the program.

There are 21 Spanish missions in California, separated from one another by about 35 miles—a day's journey in the old times.

The preservation committee is headed by Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover and Joseph R. Knowland, Oakland publisher.

New Discovery Expected to End Abscessed Teeth

Toronto, Ont.—What is called the greatest advance in dentistry in 100 years is announced from the Royal College of Dentistry here as the result of research work carried on at the University of Toronto and clinical experiments by Toronto dentists.

Briefly, the result of this discovery is expected to be that no longer will there be any danger of abscesses forming at the roots of teeth. The essence of the discovery is the use of copper amalgam as a permanent filling for the root canals of the tooth. Copper amalgam has been used as a filling for teeth before, but not until now was it known to have germicidal effect.

It is stated that when a nerve in a tooth has been destroyed the cavity can be filled with copper amalgam and there will be no danger of an abscess or gathering forming at the root of the tooth.

PRAISE GOVERNOR DONAHEY

Governor Announced That He Has Decided Definitely
Against Third Term.

Governor Donahey's remarkable victory in the November election was praised by numerous speakers who described him as the "most popular Democratic governor in Ohio's history."

What may have been the beginning of a boom for Donahey for United senator was in the declaration of Judge Hugh Nichols, of Batavia, that "Democrats would be a set of ginnies if they let Donahey, their greatest vote getter in Ohio, go back to private life."

Donahey announced that he has decided definitely against seeking a third term as governor.
